Health begins by intentionally building God's purposes for His church into our lives and ministries. The purposes of the church are listed in various studies as worship, instruction, fellowship, evangelism, service, prayer, and stewardship. It requires building a healthy church that sits under God's preached Word, and knows what God has tasked the church to do. It requires godly leaders who teach and set the example. And it requires members who love Jesus and increasingly can't help but sing the praises of him who brought them from death to life—inside and outside the church building. Evangelism: How the Whole Church Speaks of Jesus (9Marks, Building Healthy Churches Series) Stiles, J.
