A few years ago, George Beaton published an influential e-book, NewLaw New Rules: A Conversation About the Future of the Legal Services Industry, that pulled together comments and responses he received from numerous legal thought leaders and experts about his NewLaw-focused blog post. George Beaton's new book brings together in one place a conversation that has been taking place between many of the profession's top minds. Some of the predictions are controversial, some I dispute, but if you want to quickly bring yourself up to date on the latest thinking on what the future may hold for the law, then this is essential reading. NewLaw New Rules breaks new ground. The book shows how trends in industry structure and clients' buying behaviour are changing the legal landscape – and in doing so create opportunities for a new category of legal services provider and also challenge law firms based on the traditional business model. NewLaw New Rules makes the conversation available in a structured and edited form. It is a snapshot of the state and development of the legal services industry. It is a snapshot of the state and development of the legal services industry.
