

Download Nipple Trauma Breastfeeding Management

An inverted nipple (occasionally invaginated nipple) is a condition where the nipple, instead of pointing outward, is retracted into the breast. A nipple shield, or as some new mothers have called it a "breast shield" or "nipple guard" is used as a breastfeeding tool to help assist some babies with latching difficulties. Find out why Dr. Newman's All Purpose Nipple Ointment (APNO) is a popular choice for breastfeeding moms plus how to make, use, and apply it. NIPPLE PAIN Transient soreness, Prolonged abnormal soreness, Contributing Factors, Breastfeeding Assessment, Helpful Links