These stories are eminently 're-readable'. They are individually beautifully shaped by the directors, but it is the authentic voice of each personal story - whether it is brave or bewildered - that grabs you. Jason Turbow is the author of The Baseball Codes (Pantheon, 2010), which NPR called "one of the all-time greats," and writes for The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal and Sports Illustrated, among other publications. Allen Iverson was going to jail tomorrow. They sat around unsure of what to say. They fired up the Sega thinking Tecmo Bowl would provide the much-needed distraction. Personal site of author-editor Pat McNees, personal historian and medical historian, bringing a light touch to heavy subjects, helping people and organizations tell their life stories.
