The second sentence of 'Pride and Prejudice' also follows on with the theme of marriage and finding a suitable husband. The opening sentence of Pride and Prejudice—"It is a truth universally acknowledged, that a single man in possession of a good fortune, must be in want of a wife"—establishes the centrality of advantageous marriage, a fundamental social value of Regency England. The arrival of Mr. Bingley (and news of his fortune) is the event that sets the novel in motion. He delivers the prospect of ...
