

Download Simply Psychology, Second Edition

Abnormal psychology is a division of psychology that studies people who are "abnormal" or "atypical" compared to the members of a given society. Community psychology studies the individuals' contexts within communities and the wider society, and the relationships of the individual to communities and society. In psychology, a first impression is the event when one person first encounters another person and forms a mental image of that person. Impression accuracy varies depending on the observer and the target (person, object, scene, etc.) being observed. BibMe Free Bibliography & Citation Maker - MLA, APA, Chicago, Harvard