Upper Intermediate / Advanced: This is where Spanish gets really fun! At this level, you're moving from learning the language to actually using it. Some people say we can learn a language from the very beginning just by acquiring a lot of input through reading and listening, without relying on textbooks, even with no previous knowledge of the target language. I'm not especially interested in Esperanto as a movement. However there are two issues that you do not address. a) there are only a few languages that have very much track record as a pivot language for purposes of translation: English, French, Russian, Arabic. ????? ?????????? ??????
